Senate Military Group Demands Army Discharge Of All Fathers

Release of All Dads by July 1 Is Recommended by Subcommittee

EIGHT PROPOSALS GO TO WAR DEPARTMENT

Group Urges Law To Compel Acceptance if Army Rejects "Suggestions"

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (P)—The Senate Military subcommittee recommended today that all fathers in the army, except volunteers, be discharged by July 1 although Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower said it could not be done.

This was one of eight steps the subcommittee urged to speed demobilization. If the War department fails to take them, the group proposed that Congress should pass a law to compel their adoption.

The other seven:

1. Continue "the rate of demobilization of the past few months" until the approximately 2,000,000 surplus men now in the army are discharged.

2. Shorten the training of new men. (The army recently cut the training period from seventeen to thirteen weeks.)

3. Give "prompt attention" to "special hardship cases."

4. Assign "all idle soldiers" to "essential tasks" or discharge them "at once."

Enlist WACs To Replace GIs

5. Enlist WACs to replace soldiers on duty on separation centers.

6. Push "more effectively" the enlistment of Philippine scouts to replace GIs there.

7. Employ civilians here and abroad "insofar as possible" to replace soldiers "in the so-called army housekeeping jobs." This is the term usually given to kitchen police, latrine and similar details.

Eisenhower has said that 500,000 of the 700,000 fathers still in the army will be discharged by July 1 in the normal operation of the demobilization plan. But he asserted that any blanket release for this class of soldier would cripple the army seriously and prevent its accomplishing its tasks.

"The real answer to all the complaints about demobilization is a quick return to a volunteer army," said the report signed by Sens. Johnson (D-Colo.), chairman; Briggs (D-Mo.) and Revercomb (R-Wyo.).

The three were appointed by Chairman Elbert D. Thomas (D-Utah) of the Military committee, to investigate the entire demobilization program after GIs in a series of mass demonstrations protested an announced slowdown.

Inhuman To Hold Fathers

"Thousands of soldiers and the families and friends of soldiers who have seen long, hard service abroad have wanted to testify," the report said. "Their telegrams, cables, letters and telephone calls have been studied with great care, and we clearly understand their point. (Continued on Page 8, Col. 5)

German Cruiser, Now At Boston, Sank Big British Battleship

BOSTON, Jan. 23 (P)—The 42,100-ton British battleship Hood was sunk midway between Greenland and Iceland in 1941 not by the German pocket battleship Bismarck, as generally supposed, but by the cruiser Prinz Eugen, the navy said today upon the Eugen's arrival here.

The Prinz Eugen placed a direct shot on the Hood, blowing up her magazines and thus sinking her in one of the major losses of the British sea forces, a history of the 19,553-ton cruiser said.

Forrestal and Ikes Seek Basic Changes in Atom Control Measure

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (P)—Both Ikes and Forrestal recommended centralizing the commissioning of all military personnel in an administrator. Such a provision is missing from the McMahon bill, although it appears in two other proposed control measures introduced respectively by Sens. Edwin C. Johnson (D-Colo.) and Joseph H. Ball (R-Minn.).

Forrestal predicted that outstanding scientists would decline to serve on the commission if their tenure of office could be terminated at the president's pleasure, as provided by McMahon. Ikes noted that the government had seen some vast technological changes in the past but had found it unnecessary to set up special departments of steam or electricity.

It is easy to become hysterical over the real dangers that are inherent in our conquest of the atom," he observed.

However, he did not deny the need for government controls over the production of fissionable materials.

Secretary Forrestal of the navy, came out for an eight-member commission headed by the vice president of the United States and including all ex-officio members the secretaries of state, war and navy. The other four would be appointed by the president for six-year terms, subject to Senate confirmation. (Continued on Page 8, Col. 6)

Agriculture Department Will Become Country's Boss Butcher on Saturday

Government Lacks Any Pledge That 193,000 CIO Strikers Will Return to Work; Gayle Armstrong Is Designated To Run Plants

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (P)—The question of when the nation's dinner tables will get a normal supply of meat remained unanswered tonight despite President Truman's decision to seize strike-bound packing plants Saturday.

Hours after the White House announced the Agriculture department would become the country's boss butcher this weekend, the government lacked any pledge that 193,000 CIO strikers would return to work.

However, the AFL Meat Cutters and Butchers Union ordered its striking members, who it said numbered 70,000, to go back on the job Saturday as "loyal Americans."

Earl Jamerson, president, and Patrick E. Gorman, secretary-treasurer of the AFL union, said they had assurances "from sources we cannot reveal that the government will apply any wage increase recommended by the fact-finding board retroactively at least to the date of seizure."

New York members of the CIO union voted against returning to work until their wage demands were met or until ordered back by their national leaders. There was no commitment from the latter; one union official who declined to be quoted by name said "present policy" dictated continuance of the walkout.

Short's Evidence Surprises Pearl Harbor Probers

Miles Message Indicates Japs "Crossed-up" Washington

By WILLIAM T. PEACOCK

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (P)—Maj. Gen. Walter C. Short surprised the Pearl Harbor investigating committee today with documentary evidence that:

1. Maj. Gen. Sherman Miles, 1941 assistant chief of staff for military intelligence, sent a message to Panama two days before Pearl Harbor indicating he did not believe a break with Japan was then imminent;

2. Maj. Gen. Hayes A. Kroner, chief of the intelligence branch under Miles, did not have access which "incite suspicion in international circles" and cited as an example a recent report that MacArthur had opposed the use of Russian troops in his command.

"It is a deplorable condition when some of the dissident press of the world continues to incite and foment international mistrust, whereas "now more than ever every effort should be more toward understanding and agreement."

He added:

"It can be expected that continuing critical attacks will flow from the left-wing press of the United States" as well as other countries, and that momentary setbacks in the campaign "will merely spur these elements to a more studied plan of attack."

He denounced particularly reports which "incite suspicion in international circles" and cited as an example a recent report that MacArthur had opposed the use of Russian troops in his command.

"This story," he said, "to those who knew the facts—and the Russian government knew them too—could only show the extremes to which someone will go in manipulating "which would lead us to believe that they were capable of or planned to do so." (Attack the Hawaiian base.)

Short, who was the army commander in Hawaii at the time of the December 7, 1941, raid, offered Miles' message and the Kroner testimony to support his contention that the War department fully realized his command was alerted only against sabotage and was satisfied with this.

The witness, although his voice was enfeebled by a recent attack of pneumonia, spoke up with vigor whenever there was a question as to his responsibility for being caught by surprise.

Repeatedly, he emphasized that Washington failed either to order (Continued on Page 8, Col. 7)

Fairless Asks Management Wage Conference; Steel Union Wants U. S. To Operate Its Own Plants

Steel Executive Requests Truman To Call Meeting

Wage Boosts, from U. S. Economy Standpoint, Would Be Considered

WAY MIGHT BE OPENED FOR STRIKE SOLUTION

Fairless Says Walkout Is "Strike against Reconversion"

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (P)—Benjamin F. Fairless, president of the United States Steel Corporation, tonight asked President Truman to call an all-management conference of experienced executives from strike-bound companies to consider what kind of a wage increase the economy of this country can endure.

These men could discuss frankly with the president, and give him the benefit of their advice on what kind of a wage increase the economy of this country can endure without incurring the danger of an inflationary spiral with a constant race between mounting wages and mounting prices," Fairless said.

He made the statement in an address prepared for delivery over the American Broadcasting Company network.

Fairless declared the meeting might open the way for a solution not only of the steel walkout, but "the other strikes that now plague the country."

A "National Problem"

"This is a national problem which should be solved, not on the basis of political considerations, but rather on the broad basis of what is in the best interests of the American people as a whole," he added.

Fairless said the current walkout was more than a strike by the CIO-United Steel Workers against the industry. He said "it is a strike by this powerful union against reconversion—against full production and employment—against the ability of the returning serviceman to go to work. It is a strike by the union against the thousands of businesses throughout the country, large and small, which use steel. It is a strike against the public."

He traced the progress of negotiations, from the original union demand for a $2 a day wage increase to the reduced request for nineteen and one half cents an hour; the company's hike from twelve and one half cents to fifteen cents, and President Truman's proposal of eighteen and one half cents an hour retroactive to January 1, 1946.

Fairless said he relayed the president's suggestion to United States (Continued on Page 8, Col. 5)

PARIS, Jan. 23 (P)—Felix Gouin, 61, Socialist Chief of the Constituent Assembly, tonight succeeded Gen. DeGaulle as president of the provisional government of France.

The interim president will serve until the Constituent Assembly finishes its work in May.

The assembly's vote was 447 votes cast for other candidates with some absences.

Gouin's election was greeted with cheers from all sides except the section occupied by the Popular Republican Movement (MRP), one of France's three major parties.

The MRP at the last moment had requested an agreement that the Socialists and Communists join with the MRP in recognizing the necessity of a tri-partite government.

"Seizure will be made by the department of Agriculture with the aid of the War department if necessary.

"The plants will be operated by the department of Agriculture."

Charles Ross, President Truman's press secretary, said no other details were immediately available.

Secretary of Agriculture Anderson tonight designated Gayle Armstrong, New Mexico rancher, as his agent to operate the strike-bound meat packing plants.

Armstrong is a close personal friend of Anderson, is assistant administrator of the department's Production and Marketing Administration and vice president of the Commodity Credit Corporation.

Anderson said he will send Armstrong to Chicago tomorrow to arrange for seizure and operation of the plants.

George Sand (Aurore Dupin) was an amazing French woman who lived from 1804 to 1876, and, according to her contemporaries, raised Cain every minute of the time. She was the forerunner of all modern, rebellious, independent women. She did everything that nineteenth century ladies were supposed not to do. She discarded the cumbersome noops of the day and went about in trousers, riding astride, smoking and looking everyone straight in the eye.

She was not noisy about it. She was, indeed, very quiet, gentle and sympathetic, but she was determined to live life honestly and bravely, and she refused to let her mind, body or spirit be hampered needlessly.

band, wrung her beloved children from his incompetent hands, and then further exasperated respectable people by making a tremendous success of writing in the face of slander, persecution and almost unbearable hardship.

A strong woman—a woman who was like a great, bold wind blowing through the musty society of her day—and yet for the most part, a miserably unhappy woman. For, with all her intelligence and spirit, George Sand was caught in that cruel trap which has crushed so many women's lives.

George Sand was trapped by romance.

She thought, as women have always thought, that she would find the answer to her life's riddle in some man's love. If she could only find the right man, all her restlessness would be stilled, her humiliations satisfied. But she never found the right man, although she loved and was loved by many of the most brilliant men of her day with every possible demonstration of extravagant devotion. Never did a woman dare more for romance or receive more in return for her daring than George Sand. Yet romance failed her—her heart remained unsatisfied.

When she was 42, desolation fell upon her as it falls upon all women. She was growing old; she was through with love; there was nothing more to live for. She went through a great agony. But she did not come out of that agony broken or bitter, crying that love was a mockery or that men could not be trusted.

She was as honest in her hour of defeat as she had been in her reckless search for love. She saw that neither men nor love was to blame; that she alone was to blame, because she had sought fulfillment through romance, and romance was not enough. Life was made for greater ends than romance.

When George Sand realized that she at last found peace—she at last grew up. Her love no longer sought a man—it spread and deepened until it could include all men. She had freed love, and love, in return, freed her from her hunger and restlessness.

Romance is not enough.

That is the hardest lesson for women to learn.

In line with the nation-wide "share-the-home" effort to provide housing for veterans and their families, the OPA in Maryland is encouraging the renting of rooms and making it "as easy as possible for owners to do so," Leo H. McCormick, Maryland OPA state director, notified the local office yesterday.

In some sections veterans are meeting an acute housing shortage, McCormick said. He outlined for the assistance of prospective landlords OPA regulations affecting the rental of single rooms.

McCormick gave the following guide for prospective home-sharers:

If you are renting a room for the first time, simply set a rental which you believe is in line with ceiling rents in your neighborhood.

Within 30 days the owner should register the rental rate with the OPA Area Rent Office to determine if it is in line.

"An owner need have no fear he will be unable to evict undesirable tenants," said the OPA state director. "In case where only one or two sleeping rooms are rented to not more than two roomers or one family, even where the tenant is allowed kitchen privileges, evictions are permitted under OPA regulations."

When she was 42, desolation fell upon her as it falls upon all women. She was growing old; she was through with love; there was nothing more to live for. She went through a great agony. But she did not come out of that agony broken or bitter, crying that love was a mockery or that men could not be trusted.

She was as honest in her hour of defeat as she had been in her reckless search for love. She saw that neither men nor love was to blame; that she alone was to blame, because she had sought fulfillment through romance, and romance was not enough. Life was made for greater ends than romance.

When George Sand realized that she at last found peace—she at last grew up. Her love no longer sought a man—it spread and deepened until it could include all men. She had freed love, and love, in return, freed her from her hunger and restlessness.

Romance is not enough.

That is the hardest lesson for women to learn.

Infantile Paralysis FundIs of Local Self-Interest

PEOPLE of Allegany county as well as other Marylanders have a particular self-interest in the March of Dimes campaign now under way to raise funds for the National Foundation of Infantile Paralysis.

This is to be seen in the fact that half of the money raised will remain in Maryland to be applied to local activities where they are found to be needed.

A striking example of how this has been done in the past is of present interest. In the summer of 1944, after a full of two years, the state was suddenly stricken with the worst epidemic of the paralysis in its recorded medical history.

Four hundred and thirty-six persons, chiefly young children, were stricken with the disease. Specialists and other doctors did their best to give every one of these victims the best treatment and care and they were backed by aid both from the state chapter and the national foundation.

This was done also in an epidemic of 1941, but after that was over they went a step farther. The next year, using only local resources, they made an exhaustive follow-up of each case—296 in all. The analysis ranged all the way from complete recovery to death was so helpful that it was immediately published by the national foundation and sent to doctors all over the nation.

Doctors of the state wanted to do the same thing in 1944 but the available personnel, which was sharply reduced by the exigencies of war, was unequal to the task. The good news now comes that the follow-up will be made headed as in 1942 by the two eminent orthopedic surgeons, Drs. Raymond E. Lenhard and George E. Bennett. This time the money will come from the national foundation and not from local sources.

Curtailing of the scourge elsewhere in the nation will undoubtedly have an effect upon its reappearance in this state. A good example of the human wreckage wrought by infantile paralysis in the United States is found in information provided by the national foundation. It reveals that 11,000 persons of all ages suffered the disabling effects of this disease in 1945 alone. Many of this number will be crippled or otherwise handicapped for the rest of their lives. Others may, with the proper treatment, be cured completely or regain through readjustment many abilities they have lost.

The "March of Dimes" campaign which is now under way will mean for many polio victims the difference between lifelong suffering, perhaps with dependence upon the physical services of others, and eventual complete recovery and independence. It will mean much, as indicated here in Maryland and in this country. It is impossible, of course, to foretell when and where it may strike epidemically, but it might strike this county sharply.

Therefore the local contributions, as stated, will be in self-protection as well as aiding a great humanitarian movement for the nation. The contributions asked are small—every person can and should put something into the dime containers as well as to contribute in the other ways possible.

State Funds
And Economy

GOVERNOR O'CONOR has taken commendable steps to impound $1,006,303 of state appropriations for the current fiscal year. The amount impounded will be held for further state action and will be out of the reach of departments to which the appropriations are usually made. And departments have a habit of reaching for all they can get under various excuses, some of which are furnished rather prettily.

Further tax reductions, an increase of the postwar construction fund or the retention of the money for emergency purposes are possible uses to which the impounded funds can be put. In the event that the governor and members of the state board of public works decide that the monies should not be spent, the balance will revert to the general treasury of the state on June 30.

Since there are differences of opinion as to the surplus that will be piled up with indications that it will continue to be large rather than small, the urge to use that money, however, will be strong.

Nobody will begrudge any efforts to effect savings in state expenditures, but on the contrary any practical results in that direction will receive the praise of the taxpayers. But it might be well to inquire what attention is to be given to the various suggestions that have been made in the past by various taxpayers' organizations respecting economy in the jobholding lists, of which nothing has been heard.

Some Timely Thoughts
About Little Business

ABROAD, and even in this country, large corporations are accepted as typical of American business. Yet, as pointed out by Prof. George W. Starr, director of Indiana university's Bureau of Business Research, nearly one-third of the manufacturing in the United States is done in plants employing fewer than 100 persons. More than forty per cent of the wholesale and retail business and two-thirds of the service business of the nation is done by what the department of Commerce classifies as small business.

The man in the street may think of American business men in terms of tycoons, but the fact is that the corner grocer, the filling station operator, the little machine shop owner are the base and the fabric of this country's economic system. They may not get the headlines, but they do the work.

A wise government would encourage and stimulate little business. Excessive concentration is not healthy. It is a step toward the corporate state, whether operated by private interests or public officials—a state of collectivism or special privilege—all equally abhorrent to the American tradition. It is a state where wealth accumulates and men decay.

For that reason, Professor Starr's warning against present initiatives—stifling taxation and the price absorption policies of the OPA is especially timely. These put the squeeze on little business, which most needs help and encouragement. "New businesses can not be established in an economic climate of this kind," Professor Starr says. Big business may hold their position, but in the American system big business exists largely as an incentive and goal for little business. The gain in the nation's wealth, which benefits all by adding to the rewards of living, is dependent on new businesses—the new businesses of the Edisons of this generation, working far into the night in their kitchens, their garages or their workshops, to develop an idea. That may make them rich, but it will make America richer.

Those Pacific Island Bases

SUPPOSE the United Nations Security Council should veto the proposal for United States trustee-ship of its Pacific island bases? Dean Acheson, acting secretary of state, has the answer to that.

Should anyone of the other four major powers—Russia, Britain, China or France—use its special veto power on a request for individual trusteeship then this country could withdraw its application.

The base thus would revert to its status quo in effect, under the sole trusteeship and control of the United States by virtue of conquest and occupation.

That appears to be the correct and logical answer under international law principles.

But the rule can apply to others.

Russia, for example, could perhaps use the same strategy to retain permanent control of the Kurile islands, which were occupied by Soviet forces under an agreement which Acheson said was reached at the Yalta conference.

The Kuriles, stretching fanwise across the entrance of the Okhotsk sea, which wraps Eastern Russia, early in the war provided a springboard for the Japanese invasion of the Aleutians.

Thus the international trusteeship plan seems to be in for a possible clash, but one not impossible of solution.

Worth While
Conversation*INEFFECTUAL CONVERSATION

TON is seldom caused by poor talking technique or structural voice difficulties in the opinion of Alice Rice Cook, personnel counselor. Writing in "Your Life" magazine, Miss Cook points out that few persons require technical lessons or corrective courses in order to be effective conversationalists.

"Rather," she says, "almost everything depends upon choosing to make the other person comfortable."

Once an attitude of good will in communication is established, the rest is a matter of minutes. I have seen people change themselves within three minutes from flat-voiced conversational bores into entertaining talkers.

As they consciously colored their manner of speech with kindness, warmth, generosity, their awareness of the other person suddenly expanded. They became interested and, consequently, interesting. That kind of sincerity bridges all gaps and vaults all fences. True conversation is practical democracy in action.

It is an excellent suggestion. Bolled down, however, it is just another application of the "Golden Rule"—and it is astonishing how many problems, even little ones, that can be made to overcome.

Another Hitler bastard has turned up, this time in London and self-professed. It appears that the moral stench of the Nazi leader will be a long time in quenching.

The butter shortage will be less keen if there is to be no steak to fry in butter anyway.

GREAT LITERATURE LIVES

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

In the making of many books, of which there seems to be no end, and of "first sellers" that vie with one another for profits and great sales, there still remain in the world great masterpieces of literature from which even time cannot dim the lustre.

De Quincey once said: "A good steam-engine is properly superseded by a better. But one lovely pastoral valley is not superseded by another; nor a statue of Praxiteles by a statue of Michael Angelo." And so it is that great literature remains undimmed throughout the centuries, never becoming dated. It is from such literature that we gain all the inspiration for what we produce today.

I read somewhere that when a new book was produced an old one should be read! Certainly there is a reason why such books as those of Shakespeare, Milton, Dante, Hugo, and others still live, as alive today as when they were written.

The late Wendell Willkie, shortly before he died, wrote this in an issue of "The American Scholar": "When you range back and forth through the centuries, when you weigh the utterance of some great thinker or absorb the meaning of some great composition, in painting or music or poetry, when you live these things within yourself and measure yourself against them—only then do you become an initiate in the world of the free."

There is now a great rage for vitamins that profess to supply what the ordinary food of human beings, so it is said, fails largely to produce. Perhaps it is time now to return, with enthusiasm, to the rare and rich literary vitamins, contained in the great literature of the past! Perhaps that is just what is lacking in our books of today. And it may well be said that our best books today show a feeding upon just that.

Great books never die. They give zest to living. They flower the mind. They feed hope within the heart. They create a glow in the world long after their creator's body has become dust, and his soul immortal!

Protected, 1946.

THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUNDWashington Society Wonders Why Fish Took Tea at White House, Pearson Says

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—It was just a little over a year ago that the late Franklin Roosevelt waged a campaign to defeat Rep. Ham Fish, rip-snorting isolationist congressman from FDR's district along the Hudson.

Roosevelt had tried to defeat Fish time after time. So had Gov. Tom Dewey plus various other important figures in New York state, both Republicans and Democrats. They felt that Fish's tie-ups with certain German-Americans, and the renting of his home in New York to the Nazi consulate, was too much.

As they consciously colored their manner of speech with kindness, warmth, generosity, their awareness of the other person suddenly expanded. They became interested and, consequently, interesting. That kind of sincerity bridges all gaps and vaults all fences. True conversation is practical democracy in action.

It is an excellent suggestion. Bolled down, however, it is just another application of the "Golden Rule"—and it is astonishing how many problems, even little ones, that can be made to overcome.

Another Hitler bastard has turned up, this time in London and self-professed. It appears that the moral stench of the Nazi leader will be a long time in quenching.

The butter shortage will be less keen if there is to be no steak to fry in butter anyway.

British Buffer State

It isn't being advertised, but Marshal Zhukov, Soviet commander in Germany, has sent a blistering letter to Field Marshal Montgomery that according to his information, part of these Nazi troops were being drilled regularly by their own officers. He also claimed about 100,000 Germans had been allowed to retain their small arms, that heavy ordnance, including tanks and artillery, was kept close at hand, available for use.

Zhukov notified Field Marshal Montgomery that he considered this hostile to Russia and in violation of the Potsdam agreement.

Marshal Montgomery's reply to Zhukov was equally blistering. He admitted thousands of Germans were still armed, but claimed the number was less than Zhukov alleged.

In general, however, the tone of Montgomery's letter was so what?

Behind this exchange of letters is a dangerous situation which began with the armistice and has been getting worse ever since. It is the British balance-of-power policy of playing off Germany against Russia.

The same thing happened after the last war, when the British played off Germany against France. British money poured into German industry, German banks and even German munitions plants. When the French proposed stopping Hitler's invasion of the Rhineland on March 7, 1936, it was the British who discouraged the French.

Today Britain is still following the balance-of-power policy—with a different twist. Instead of playing France off against Germany, she is trying to patch up relations between these two, and play both off against Russia.

Today Britain is trying to consolidate a strong western bloc—France, Holland and Germany. That is the real factor behind the policy of saving certain German factories; also behind the keeping of German troops in their original regimental formations.

Aside from colonial troops, Britain always has kept one of the smallest armies in the world.

So German troops are now serving as a virtual backstop in the balance-of-power game against Russia.

Taxes Help Steel Companies

If you want to see why the steel companies aren't too worried about the strike, take a look at the tax law Congress so generously gave them. Though it's hard to understand all the taxation jujitsu, it will give you a revealing picture. Take for instance the case of Bethlehem Steel.

Actually, Bethlehem's books show that it went into the red as soon as the war ended. But the real fact is that 1945, despite the tax legerdemain, was the most prosperous year Bethlehem has seen in the history of the company.

Here is what happened: During the third quarter of 1945, Bethlehem earned a profit before taxes of

$2,676,000. However, Bethlehem will pay no taxes on this sum because it will show a paper loss for the period which is legal and will allow a tax-free loss of $57,856,000.

Ordinarily business is permitted to depreciate property over the life of the property. But back in 1940

when some businessmen were stalling on starting war production,

Congress handed business a lush incentive which permitted it to amortize its defense plants over a five-year period or less if the war ended sooner.

However, lush as it was, this wasn't juicy enough so big business lobbyists managed to wangle even more generous treatment in the Tax Adjustment act of 1945.

This law, passed last July, made it possible for business to be paid tentative refunds arising from recomputation of amortization of national defense facilities within ninety days.

Then on September 29, 1945,

President Truman indorsed

a bill which would permit businesses

Infantile Paralysis Fund
Is of Local Self-Interest

PEOPLE of Allegany county as well as other Marylanders have a particular self-interest in the March of Dimes campaign now under way to raise funds for the National Foundation of Infantile Paralysis.

This is to be seen in the fact that half of the money raised will remain in Maryland to be applied to local activities where they are found to be needed.

A striking example of how this has been done in the past is of present interest. In the summer of 1944, after a lull of two years, the state was suddenly struck with the worst epidemic of the paralysis in its recorded medical history.

Four hundred and thirty-six persons, chiefly young children, were stricken with the disease. Specialists and other doctors did their best to give every one of these victims the best treatment and care and they were backed by aid both from the state chapter and the national foundation.

This was done also in an epidemic of 1941, but after that was over they went a step farther. The next year, using only local resources, they made an exhaustive follow-up of each case—296 in all. The analysis ranged all the way from complete recovery to death was so helpful a check on national practices that it was immediately published by the national foundation and sent to doctors all over the nation.

Doctors of the state wanted to do the same thing in 1944 but the available personnel, which was sharply reduced by the exigencies of war, was unequal to the task. The good news now comes that the follow-up will be made, headed as in 1942, by the two eminent orthopedic surgeons, Drs. Raymond E. Lenhard and George E. Bennett. This time the money will come from the national foundation and not from local sources.

Curtailment of the scourge elsewhere in the nation will undoubtedly have an effect upon its reappearance in this state. A good example of the human wreckage wrought by infantile paralysis in the United States is found in information provided by the national foundation. It reveals that 11,000 persons of all ages suffered the disabling effects of this disease in 1945 alone. Many of this number will be crippled or otherwise handicapped for the rest of their lives. Others may, with the proper treatment, be cured completely or regain through readjustment many abilities they have lost.

The "March of Dimes" campaign which is now under way will mean for many polio victims the difference between lifelong suffering, perhaps with dependence upon the physical services of others, and eventual complete recovery and independence. It will mean much, as indicated here in Maryland and in this country. It is impossible, of course, to foretell when and where it may strike epidemically but it might strike this country sharply.

Therefore the local contributions, as stated, will be in self-protection as well as aiding a great humanitarian movement for the nation. The contributions asked are small—every person can and should put something into the dime containers as well as to contribute in the other ways possible.

State Funds
And Economy

GOVERNOR O'CONOR has taken commendable steps to impound $1,006,303 of state appropriations for the current fiscal year. The amount impounded will be held for further state action and will be out of the reach of departments to which the appropriations are usually made.

And departments have a habit of reaching for all they can get under various excuses, some of which are furnished rather prettily.

Further tax reductions, an increase of the postwar construction fund or the retention of the money for emergency purposes are possible uses to which the impounded funds can be put. In the event that the governor and members of the state board of public works decide that the monies should not be spent, the balance will revert to the general treasury of the state on June 30.

Since there are differences of opinion as to the surplus that will be piled up with indications that it will continue to be large rather than small, the urge to use that money, however, will be strong.

Nobody will begrudge any efforts to affect savings in state expenditures, but on the contrary any practical results in that direction will receive the praise of the taxpayers. But it might be well to inquire what attention is to be given to the various suggestions that have been made in the past by various taxpayers' organizations respecting economy in the jobholding lists, of which nothing has been heard.

Some Timely Thoughts
About Little Business

ABROAD, and even in this country, large corporations are accepted as typical of American business. Yet, as pointed out by Prof. George W. Starr, director of Indiana University's Bureau of Business Research, nearly one-third of the manufacturing in the United States is done in plants employing fewer than 100 persons. More than forty per cent of the wholesale and retail business and two-thirds of the service business of the nation is done by what the department of Commerce classifies as small business.

The man in the street may think of American business men in terms of tycoons, but the fact is that the corner grocer, the filling station operator, the little machine shop owner are the base and the fabric of this country's economic system. They may not get the headlines, but they do the work.

A wise government would encourage and stimulate little business. Excessive concentration is not healthy. It is a step toward the corporate state, whether operated by private interests or public officials—a state of collectivism or special privilege—all equally abhorrent to the American tradition. It is a state where wealth accumulates and men decay.

For that reason, Professor Starr's warning against present initiatives—stiffening taxation and the price absorption policies of the OPA is especially timely. These put the squeeze on little business, which most needs help and encouragement. "New businesses can not be established in an economic climate of this kind," Professor Starr says. Big business may hold their position, but in the American system big business exists largely as an incentive and goal for little business. The gain in the nation's wealth, which benefits all by adding to the rewards of living, is dependent on new businesses—the new businesses of the Edisons of this generation, working far into the night in their kitchens, their garages or their workshops to develop an idea. That may make them rich, but it will make America richer.

Those Pacific Island Bases

SUPPOSE the United Nations Security Council should veto the proposal for United States trustee ships of its Pacific island bases? Dean Acheson, acting secretary of state, has the answer to that.

Should anyone of the other four big powers—Russia, Britain, China or France—use its special veto power on a request for individual trusteeship then this country could withdraw its application.

The base thus would revert to its status quo, in effect, under the sole trusteeship and control of the United States by virtue of conquest and occupation.

That appears to be the correct and logical answer under international law principles.

But the rule can apply to others. Russia, for example, could perhaps use the same strategy to retain permanent control of the Kurile islands, which were occupied by Soviet forces under an agreement which Acheson said was reached at the Yalta conference.

The Kuriles, stretching fanwise across the entrance of the Okhotsk sea, which wraps Eastern Russia early in the war provided a springboard for the Japanese invasion of the Aleutians.

Thus the international trusteeship plan seems to be for a possible clash, but one not impossible of solution.

Worth While
Conversation

INEFFECTUAL CONVERSATION is seldom caused by poor talking technique or structural voice difficulties, in the opinion of Alice Rice Cook, personnel counselor. Writing in "Your Life" magazine, Mrs. Cook points out that new persons require technical lessons or corrective courses in order to be effective conversationalists.

Rather, she says, "almost everything depends upon choosing to make the other person comfortable." Once an attitude of good will in communication is established, the rest is a matter of minutes. I have seen people change themselves within three minutes from flat-voiced conversational bores into enthusiastic talkers.

As they consciously colored their manner of speech with kindness, warmth, generosity, their awareness of the other person suddenly expanded. They became interested and, consequently, interesting. That kind of sincerity bridges all gaps and vaults all fences. True conversation is practical democracy in action."

It is an excellent suggestion. Handed down, however, it is just another application of the "Golden Rule"—and it is astonishing how many problems even little ones that can be made to overcome.

SEARCHING FOR THE MAGIC PASSWORDTHE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND*Washington Society Wonders Why Fish Took Tea at White House, Pearson Says

Finally in the November, 1944 elections, FDR's long campaign achieved its goal. Ham Fish was defeated for re-election.

But, believe it or not, the other day, Mrs. Truman, whose husband ran on the same ticket with Ham Fish to the White House for tea.

Nobody knows why she did this and the White House won't explain. Mrs. Helm, social secretary to Mrs. Truman, admits that Fish was present, but flatly refuses to give the reason why.

However, Ham Fish's friends in New York state are rubbing their eyes in glee. They figure that this is the first step in staging Fish's carefully planned comeback to Congress. They are planning to pour the White House tea for all it's worth.

He charges that several hundred thousand German soldiers are being kept in the British zone organized in companies and regi-

Mid-West Farmers Favor G.O.P. Poll of Party Strength Shows

Democrats Face Hard Task To Win Back Farm Votes,
But Can Still Count on Southern Farmers,
Gallup Survey Reveals

The following is the second of a series of news reports by the Gallup Poll on political sentiment throughout the country.

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., January 23—Although Democratic party leaders are going after mid-west farm votes this year with renewed intensity, all evidence to date shows the Republican party is holding its own in the farm areas. The Democrats will have to turn some near-miracles if they expect to walk off with a majority of mid-west farm votes in 1948.

Latest soundings of farm sentiment by the Institute find that only slightly more than four farmers in every ten in the mid-west area say they would vote Democratic if a presidential election were held today.

In the solid South it is a different picture, of course, with the Southern farmers still strongly Democratic, in fact, more Democratic now than they were in 1944.

Farm sentiment was measured in the following question:

"If a presidential election were being held today, which party would you vote for—the Democratic or Republican?"

The vote of farmers in the mid-west states—states which are of crucial importance in the electoral college—follows:

Mid-West Farmers	Rep.	Dem.
1936 Election	44%	56%
1940 Election	55	45
1944 Election	57	43
TODAY	58	42

The percentages represent the average for farm sentiment in the combined area of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota, and Missouri.

The Truman administration can count on a strong backlog of Southern farm votes. With the Southern farmers counted in, the picture of total farm sentiment is more favorable to the Democrats.

All Farmers

All Farmers	Rep.	Dem.
1936	41%	59%
1940	46	54
1944	52	48
TODAY	49	51

The increase in Democratic percentage this year as compared to 1944 comes about because of a rise in Democratic strength among Southern farmers. Whereas the vote among Southern farmers in 1944 is estimated at 66 per cent Democratic, today the survey finds approximately three out of four Southern farmers favoring the Democrats if a presidential election were held.

This gain, however, is of no particular value to the Democrats in a presidential election, because increased strength in the solid South does not bring any increase in electoral votes.

A relatively small Democratic gain in mid-western states could yield much richer political dividends in an election year than a very substantial gain in states where a Democratic majority has always been assured.

This gain, however, is of no particular value to the Democrats in presidential election, because increased strength in the solid South does not bring any increase in electoral votes.

A relatively small Democratic gain in mid-western states could yield much richer political dividends in an election year than a very substantial gain in states where a Democratic majority has always been assured.

Local Committee, NCCJ Holds Initial Tolerance Meeting

To promote a permanent peace through good will, tolerance and respect of ones fellow man and dismissing prejudice the initial meeting of the Woman's Committee of Cumberland of the National Conference of Christians and Jews Incorporated, was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Morris Rosenbaum, The Dingle. Mrs. Henry A. Mackey and Mrs. Walter C. Capper are co-chairmen with Mrs. Rosenbaum for the Cumberland committee.

Talks by three guest speakers featured the programs. Mrs. C. Albert Kiper, Catholic co-chairman of the Baltimore committee, explained the various services and nucleus doctrines of the Catholic religion. She pointed out that a Catholic who practices her religion lives it every day, and not just on Sunday.

Mrs. Simon Sobeloff, Baltimore member of the Jewish Family and Children's Bureau, discussed the Jewish angle, urging everyone respect each other's religion and live together in peace. Miss Helen Garvin, executive director of International Center of the YWCA, Baltimore, spoke on behalf of the Protestant religions, urged tolerance of ones fellowmen's beliefs, whether they are understood or not and urged the group to endeavor to wipe out racial intolerance.

The National Conference of Christians and Jews, Inc., was founded in 1928 on the initiative of Charles Evans Hughes, Newton D. Baker, S. Parkes Cadman and other distinguished Americans. It is an association of individuals and not of officials commissioned by their respective religious bodies.

The conference does not seek uniformity of religious beliefs. It holds and demonstrates that those who differ deeply in religious beliefs may work together in the American way towards mutual goals. The National Conference exists to promote justice, amity, understanding and cooperation among Protestants, Catholics and Jews in the United States.

The committee in charge of the tea included Mrs. Robert L. Stallings, Mrs. H. C. Reed and Mrs. John F. Somerville.

Local Committee, NCCJ Holds Initial Tolerance Meeting

To promote a permanent peace through good will, tolerance and respect of ones fellow man and dispelling prejudice the initial meeting of the Woman's Committee of Cumberland of the National Conference of Christians and Jews Incorporated, was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Morris Rosenbaum. The Dingle, Mrs. Henry A. Mackay and Mrs. Walter C. Capper are co-chairmen with Mrs. Rosenbaum for the Cumberland committee.

Talks by three guest speakers featured the programs. Mrs. C. Albert Kuper, Catholic co-chairman of the Baltimore committee, explained the various services and nucleus doctrines of the Catholic religion. She pointed out that a Catholic who practices her religion lives it every day and not just on Sunday.

Mrs. Simon Sobeloff, Baltimore member of the Jewish Family and Children's Bureau, discussed the Jewish angle, urging everyone respect each other's religion and live together in peace. Miss Helen Garvin, executive director of International Center of the YWCA, Baltimore, spoke on behalf of the Protestant religions, urged tolerance of ones fellowmen's beliefs, whether they are understood or not and urged the group to endeavor to wipe out racial intolerance.

The National Conference of Christians and Jews, Inc. was founded in 1932 on the initiative of Charles Evans Hughes, Newton D. Baker, S. Parkes Cadman and other distinguished Americans. It is an association of individuals and not of officials commissioned by their respective religious bodies.

The conference does not seek uniformity of religious beliefs. It holds and demonstrates that those who differ deeply in religious beliefs may work together in the American way towards mutual goals. The National Conference exists to promote justice, amity, understanding and cooperation among Protestants, Catholics and Jews in the United States. The committee in charge of the tea included Mrs. Robert L. Stallings, Mrs. H. C. Reed and Mrs. John F. Somerville.

Roll call was answered by Scripture verses and cards were sent to sick members. Routine business was also transacted.

Rec Club Plans Holiday Dances

Plans for a Valentine's dance Friday, February 15, and a dance on George Washington's birthday, February 22, were discussed at the regular weekly meeting of the Rec club council at Central YMCA last evening.

A committee to arrange for entertainment, favors and decorations for the February 22 dance was appointed, with Stanley Bishop as chairman, assisted by Marion Warden, Delores Chase, Jean Watt, Shirley Sapp, Doris Thrasher, Fred Partleton, Patti Bowie and Katherine Schade.

No committee was appointed for the Valentine's dance, but special decorations will be arranged. Jay Van's orchestra will provide music for both dances, which will be held in the YMCA gymnasium.

Miss Thrasher was appointed to arrange for two door prizes each Monday evening, beginning February 4, when "spotlight swims" for Rec club members will be resumed. The swims will be held from 8 until 9:30 o'clock.

Two tables for members of the Rec club council will be reserved at the annual dinner of Central YMCA January 28, it was announced at the meeting.

Robert L. Sisson, general YMCA secretary, announced that the official count of re-registrations in the Rec club to date is 1,239, an increase of 230 over last year at the same time.

Sisson also said that the Victory room club, which was organized last fall, now has 260 members.

Between 1850 and 1940, the population of the earth doubled increasing from about 1,100,000,000 to about 2,200,000,000.

The musical program will be presented by the choir with Mrs. Blanche Stanton Gunter soloist and John G. Gridley at the organ.

The Sisterhood of B'or Chayim Congregation will be in charge of the regular service at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow evening. Mrs. Abe Mirkin will read the service and Mrs. Irving Rosenbaum will be the speaker and Mrs. Morris Rosenbaum will be in charge of the concluding part of the service.

GI Loans Now Can Be Made Faster, Fletcher Says

Streamlining measures making it possible to process loans under the GI Bill of Rights in forty-eight hours became effective Tuesday. Harold R. Fletcher, president of the Peoples bank, said yesterday, adding that loan provisions of the bill are working and have been working.

Not Enough Action

He said there has been much "red tape" in connection with GI loans in the past but commented:

"There has been too much talk and not enough action."

To show that the law has been working, Fletcher said his bank has already made $125,000 in GI loans and will increase the amount by $150,000 in the next week.

He said he has been informed that the Peoples is leading all banks in Maryland outside of Baltimore City with GI loans, and that the local institution is close to the leading Baltimore banks.

Under the new law to secure a loan for the purchase of real estate all the veteran needs to do is to select a property, secure a sales agreement from the seller, and bring the agreement together with his discharge certificate to a bank.

Previously certificates of eligibility had to be obtained from the Veterans' Administration and this step required almost three weeks of additional time.

Increased Interest

Business loans may take longer than 48 hours as more factors must be checked including potential earning facilities. Business realty loans formerly took four weeks and the time now will be one week, Fletcher stated.

The bank president said veterans already are showing increased interest in securing loans since the provisions have been liberalized.

Interest on business loans has been cut from four to three per cent and money may be borrowed for working capital stock in trade and merchandise.

The guarantee on real estate loans has been increased from $2,000 to $4,000 and the repayment period from 20 to 25 years.

The time on farm loans has also been upped from 25 to 40 years and money may be borrowed for capital and livestock.

Fletcher likewise emphasized that money can be obtained for new building.

described as "superficial" by the witness.

Differs with Dr. Corson

"Did Dornon have a heart condition prior to his death?" Ryan asked.

"Undoubtedly there was some trouble before he died," the witness replied.

With Ryan probing for more information regarding the examination, the witness said that a heart condition such as he found in his autopsy can cause death without any previous exertion, and stated that what he called a thrombosis condition is generally due to infectious material in the blood stream which eventually blocks a vessel.

Asked if he found an acute cardiac dilatation of the heart which Dr. Linne H. Corson, of Cumberland, had testified Tuesday resulted in the chief's death which Dr. Corson said was brought on by shock, concussion and tremendous physical exertion, Dr. Bess replied: "I did not recognize any dilatation."

The physician described coronary thrombosis as infectious material in the blood stream which eventually causes a clot. In coronary attacks such as he found in his autopsy can cause death without any previous exertion, and stated that what he called a thrombosis condition is generally due to infectious material in the blood stream which eventually blocks a vessel.

Asked if they were intoxicated, Michael said, "we were drinking but I wouldn't say we were drunk." Asked if "they were staggering" by the defense counsel, Michael replied, "I couldn't say, I wasn't watching myself."

Asked by Attorney H. G. Shores on cross examination H. Dornon had struck him in the course of the proceedings. Michael said "no, sir."

Asked by Shores if he heard one witness state that he had a strange hold on Chief Dornon during one phase of the proceedings, Michael said "yes, sir" and denied it.

Asked by Shores "when did you start using the Ju-Jutsu methods?" Michael replied "I deny that I had a strange hold around his neck."

Gave Friends Drinks

With Shores attempting to make an itemized list of the number of drinks Fazenbaker and Michael consumed the afternoon and night of the affair in Piedmont, Michael revealed that they had "started" at Joe Burns' saloon in Westerport "where we had two or three glasses each" and then had a bottle of beer and one shot while talking to a buddy of ours."

The witness then revealed that they had been at the Rendezvous earlier that day where they spent an hour and a half and consumed two bottles of beer. Later they went to the American Legion, he said, where they bought a pint of whiskey which they didn't drink at that time and had a "glass or two of beer." From there they went to another place where they had a bottle of beer and uncapped their bottle of liquor. They offered drinks from this bottle to several friends and acquaintances. The drinks were accepted, he said.

Michael said they told the chief they were going to Piedmont and promised to get rid of the bottle. We threw the bottle in the river. It was nearly empty anyway," he added.

Small Saw Scuffling

James Small, 36, Westerport, was the first defense witness called to testify yesterday morning and stated that he was on his way to work at 9:35 p.m. the night of the death of Dornon when he saw Fazenbaker and Dornon in front of the cafe both holding the chief's night stick.

"Were they scuffling?" Defense Counsel Herndon Athey asked.

"It didn't look like it to me," Small said. "Then I saw the night stick go up in the air. I saw no blows struck. They were holding the night stick, they weren't fighting."

"Did you run then when Michael came on?" Michael stated he had the gun? Attestor Arnold asked. "No, I walked back out to the street after which Fazenbaker and Dornon had emerged from the alley. Dornon then crumpled over the fender of his automobile and Fazenbaker lunged the night stick across the street, he said."

respect to disputes arising between management and labor.

The telegram constituted simply an acknowledgement that certain basic supply sources were strike-bound and that the instructions contained therein were reasonable assurance that local unpleasant incidents would not arise as a result of this situation.

Smith told the House:

"I have never expected to live to see the day when the dictatorship of any labor union or other private organization over the government of the United States would reach such a disgraceful stage."

"Are we to understand that the general must ask the permission of any striking labor union before he can obtain the necessary meat to feed our army?" he asked. "That is certainly the plain implication of this order."

If the unions "have taken over the United States Army," he added, "it would appear that there is a division of command. Both AFL and CIO meat packers' unions are striking. Whose permission must the general obtain in order to feed his army? Must he have the permission of Gen. William Green, of the AFL or Gen. Philip Murray, of the CIO? Or must he have permission of both of them?"

If he is asked what would happen if "Gen. William Green graciously accords the soldiers permission to eat, but Gen. Philip Murray refuses?"

Smith was joined in his demand for a congressional investigation by Rep. Cox (D-Ga.), who declared:

"This thing makes the whole army stink."

Strike Is Averted

CHICAGO, Jan. 23 (AP)—A strike against two shuttle railroads performing vital functions in the Chicago area has been averted off, T. L. Green, general manager of the roads, announced twenty-five minutes before the deadline set for the walkout.

Reporting from a meeting of officials of the railroad and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, Green first announced the strike had been averted on the Indiana Harbor Belt Line, which connects all major railroads converging in Chicago.

Almost 15,000 workers at fifty-four coal mines were sent home and the pits closed in West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Alabama. Most of these normally fuel the steel mills. But railroad cars which take the mines' output piled up with nobody to unload them at the steel mills.

At 11:05 p.m. (EST), however, Green said a scheduled walkout also had been averted on the Chicago Junction railroad, which serves the Chicago stockyards.

Strikes on both roads were set for 11:30 p.m. (EST).

Jamie Fairless turned down the eighteen and on-half cent an hour increase proposed by President Truman.

Attorneys for the state and defense indicated last night that testimony in the case would be completed today and possibly the arguments. Ryan said he planned to put Fazenbaker on the stand the first thing today and Rankin, Arnold and Shores said they would probably have two rebuttal witnesses with the possibility that Dr. Linne H. Corson would be one of them.

The case may go to the jury today but Judge Ernest See, presiding at the trial, said that is only a possibility.

Michael said he and his friend encountered another "buddy" on the bridge over the Potomac, at the Westerport end, and offered him a drink. As that point Chief Burns Hanlon, of Westerport, told the men they would have to get off the streets and stop drinking in public, he said.

Available Jobs Are Announced By USES Office

Tree Doctor Is among Unusual Occupations Open in This District

The local U. S. Employment Service office has 63 job openings listed and among them is one unusual occupation—a tree doctor, according to Patrick J. Carroll, USES office manager.

In addition jobs are open for three tree pruners, four first class millwrights, two first class sheet metal workers, 12 first class pipefitters, 15 first class machinists, one scale repairman, two first class painters, two insurance salesmen, one janitor, three auto spray painters, six auto body repairmen and 11 laborers, Carroll said. All of the above jobs are for male workers.

Not many jobs are open for women except as waitresses, cooks, dishwashers and one job as a silk finisher for a local cleaning establishment. The USES office will refer anyone filling the qualifications for the job openings listed, Carroll said.

Employers who have job openings are urged to contact the USES office to provide jobs for returning war veterans, Carroll stated. At present the number of jobless veterans listed at the local office is 824, he added. These veterans are drawing readjustment allowances of $20 per week.

The readjustment of veterans into civilian life, it has been pointed out by many officials familiar with the problems, depends on obtaining jobs for those veterans who never had one before. Once the veteran gets employment he is "completely readjusted," many officials of veterans' agencies have pointed out.

The local Maryland Unemployment Compensation Board lists 1,581 persons as unemployed and the number is increasing weekly. About a year ago the number was less than 200, officials said. Besides the 824 veterans who are jobless there are 727 industrial workers out of work.

Employment in Maryland factories declined by 45,000 in the month following the Japanese surrender, according to a report by the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the U. S. Department of Labor and the Maryland Department of Labor and Industry, it was announced today by Charles C. Center, regional director of the former agency. This one-month decline was as great as that which occurred during the entire year preceding the announcement of the victory over Japan and contributed to reducing employment to 228,000.

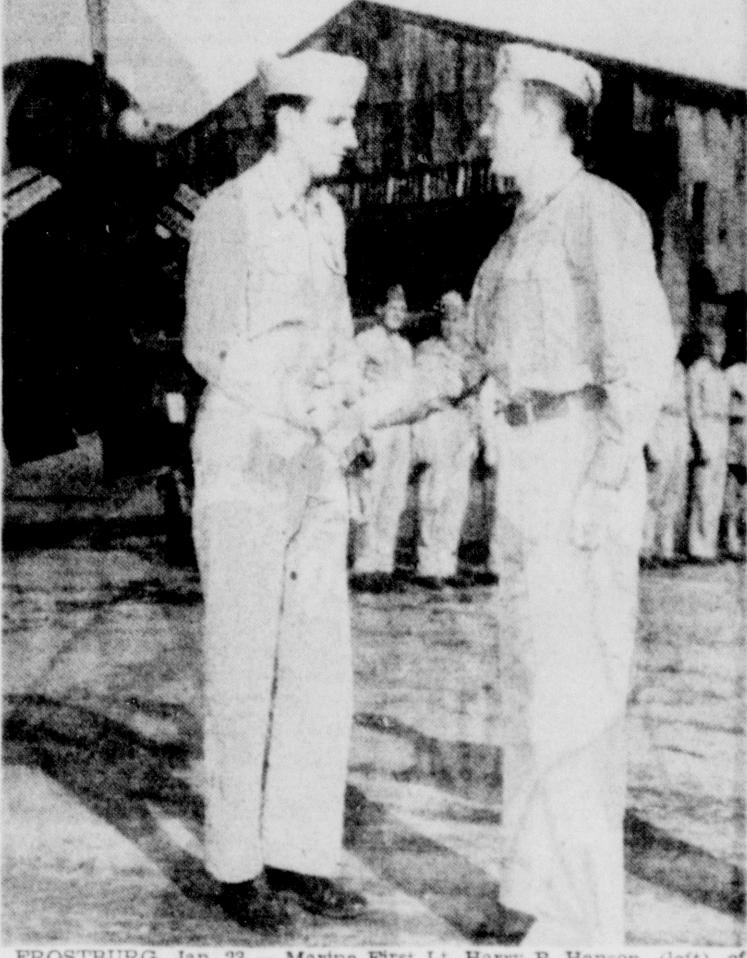

The Maryland wartime employment peak of 358,000 in the manufacturing industries was reached two years ago when the aircraft, shipbuilding, chemical and machinery industries were at the height of their activities.

Durable goods employment, which had played the major role in the wartime economy, had dropped to 122,000 by September 1945, a decline of 26 percent from the August 1945 figure, and 46 percent below the peak month of November 1943. The highest level of employment in the transportation equipment field occurred in March 1943, at this level for the succeeding eight months before the present downward trend developed.

Employment in the light industries declined only slightly between August and September but was 18,000 below a year ago. The decline over the year reflects primarily a drop in employment in the chemical industries. At peak the chemical group employed 36,000 workers but now employs less than half that number.

Drops in employment were anticipated immediately after the end of the war and the situation in Maryland was no different from other industrial states. During the reconversion period, lay-offs are inevitable but rehiring should follow shortly if manufacturing employ-

Baltimore Man Is Assigned to Navy Recruiting Office

Chief Boatswain's Mate A. J. Jeffra, Baltimore, has been temporarily assigned to the Cumberland navy recruiting station.

A veteran of eight years of service in the regular navy, Chief Jeffra served during World War II on the destroyers USS Murphy and Uliman, the carrier Yorktown and the escort carrier Charger.

The local recruiter escaped injury when the Yorktown was hit and was picked up by a destroyer after going over the side of the ship on a lifeline.

His wife, the former Joan D'Averas, was formerly a navy nurse. His brother, Harry Jeffra, well known boxer, won the bantamweight championship in 1937 and the featherweight title in 1940.

Jeffra said yesterday he expected to be assigned here permanently if housing is available.

Fort Cumberland Legion Post Will Assist Veterans

Plans Made To Help Ease Housing Situation for Returning Servicemen

Members of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, the American Legion, voted at a meeting Tuesday night to set up a "clearing house" in the office of the Maryland Veterans Commission, headed by Thomas F. Conlon, in an effort to help solve problems facing returning servicemen.

Vince P. Ingram, chairman of the rehabilitation committee, reported that there had been a lot of talk about the acute housing situation in Cumberland, but no one seems to be doing anything about it.

Persons with houses to rent or sell will be requested through advertisements in local daily papers to contact the Veterans' Commission if they desire returning veterans to have "first chance" at the homes.

Objections Voted

His answer was almost drowned out in a chorus of objections from opposing counsel, and Chairman Steuart Purcell ordered the testimony stricken from the record.

Columbia and Pan-Maryland have challenged the petition, which concerns Red Star's franchise to serve Eastern Shore cities.

A good deal of today's testimony at the hearing, which reopens the franchise squabble settled last fall by the commission, concerned whether Chesapeake is or is not a subsidiary of Red Star.

Attorney George Constable, representing Pan-Maryland, put it this way:

"Either it is a subsidiary, in which case the CAB will undoubtedly turn down its application for inter-state franchises, or it is not a subsidiary, and has no advantage over the challenging airlines in performing intra-state services."

Fred P. Adkins, of Salisbury, Chesapeake's president, testified that six men, who own all the outstanding stock of Red Star, also hold $7,000 each in Chesapeake, which has been authorized by the commission to sell $200,000 in stock.

Adkins also said Red Star exerts no financial control over the airline, and that its owners have agreed not to buy more than twenty per cent of its stock.

New Corporation Planned

Edgar T. Bennett, Red Star vice president and General manager told the commission the bus company had decided to form a new corporation to operate the airline for reasons of economy, efficient management, and to conform to the publicly stated policies of duly authorized public bodies."

He said the bus company would co-ordinate its schedules with those of the airline under Chesapeake just as closely as if Red Star were operating the airline itself.

On cross-examination by Joseph Rogan, Columbia attorney, he assured the commission that co-ordination would be arranged no matter who held the air franchise.

Constable explained that Pan-American "has not made up its mind whether to renew its application for service to the Eastern Shore points awarded to Red Star last October. A Columbia petition, however, definitely makes that company an applicant."

Chairman Purcell announced at the end of today's session that the commission would resume the hearings next Tuesday.

Seven Youths Are Sworn into Navy

Two occupancy permits were denied to the young men by the county engineer's office and a third occupancy permit was granted yesterday. Both applicants for the occupancy permits have appealed to the board of zoning appeals, which will meet February 5.

Willard Jesse Moore, 648 North Mechanic Street, sought permission to occupy two lots at 650-652 North Mechanic street as a used car lot, measuring 40 x 50 feet. The application was denied because the lots are located in a Residential C zoning district. The owner is Morris Kline, 700 North Mechanic street.

John D. Piper, 313 Independence street applied for a permit to occupy the ground floor of the building at that address as a grocery store. Piper stated that the premises were formerly occupied as a bakery. Permission was denied on the ground that the building is located in a Residential B zoning district.

Six of the youths, all 17, went into service as apprentice seamen. They are Alfonzo Garrigton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Garrigton, 137 Spring street, Frostburg, enlisting for two years; Robert H. White, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. White, Mt. Savage, entering for three years; Thomas A. Shoemaker, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Shoemaker, Junction, W. Va., enlisting for two years.

Charles Hunter Eichelberger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Garrett Eichelberger, Flintstone, two years; Robert Wilson Ware, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel W. Ware, Route 3, two years, and Russell James Wolfe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Brown James Wolfe, Moorefield, W. Va., two years.

Ralph Randolph Redman, 18 negro, son of Mrs. Alice M. Redman, 21 Paxton street, Piedmont, W. Va., was sworn in as a steward's mate, third class, for two years.

The same company was called to the home of F. D. Smith, 410 Decatur street, yesterday at 2:48 p. m. when dust and dirt from an overheated furnace in the home began to smoulder. There was no damage, firemen said.

The same company was called to the home of R. W. Woltz, 247 Columbia street, yesterday at 11:50 a. m. when an overheated flue ignited joists in the basement of the home. Firemen said damage was slight.

Slight damage was reported by West Side firemen yesterday at 11:28 a. m. from a fire in the home of George C. Jones, 724 Geppert street.

Daniel Saylor Wampler, 20, seaman, first class, Frostburg, and Vincent P. Laffey, 21, hospital apprentice, first class, Westernport, are returning to the United States from the Pacific aboard the heavy cruiser, The St. Paul, flagship of the Yangtze river patrol forces. The ship left Shanghai, January 7 and is to arrive at San Pedro, Calif., late this month.

American Legion Helps Veterans To Find Friends

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

The following letter was received as an answer to one printed in this column recently and signed "Average Man." This "Average Man" was a returned veteran who wanted to know how he could meet some nice girls. Because this letter suggests one practical way it may be of interest to other returned veterans who have the same problem.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

As an American Legion auxiliary worker and rehabilitation chairman, I was very much interested in the letter written to you by column by "Average Man."

By joining our American Legion post, any veteran can meet a lot of nice young girls who are members of the auxiliary.

If there is any way I could contact "Average Man" and he is in our area, I would like to invite him to join our post.

MRS. M.

American Legion posts in all parts of the country are eager to welcome the veterans of this war and offer splendid opportunities for social contacts. If "Average Man" cares to send his name and address, and he lives in Mrs. M's neighborhood, I will be glad to forward her name and address to him if he wishes to contact her.

To "Two Worried People":

I am sure that you are worrying needlessly over a matter that could be explained quite simply.

If you care to send me your names and addresses, I will be glad to write you a personal letter.

The Girl He Met on a Liner

Dear Miss Fairfax:

There is a girl who lives in Illinois. She is a student. I met her on a Swedish liner last summer during a repatriation trip. Her journey started from India and mine from Southern Europe. We had a wonderful time aboard the ship and lots of fun.

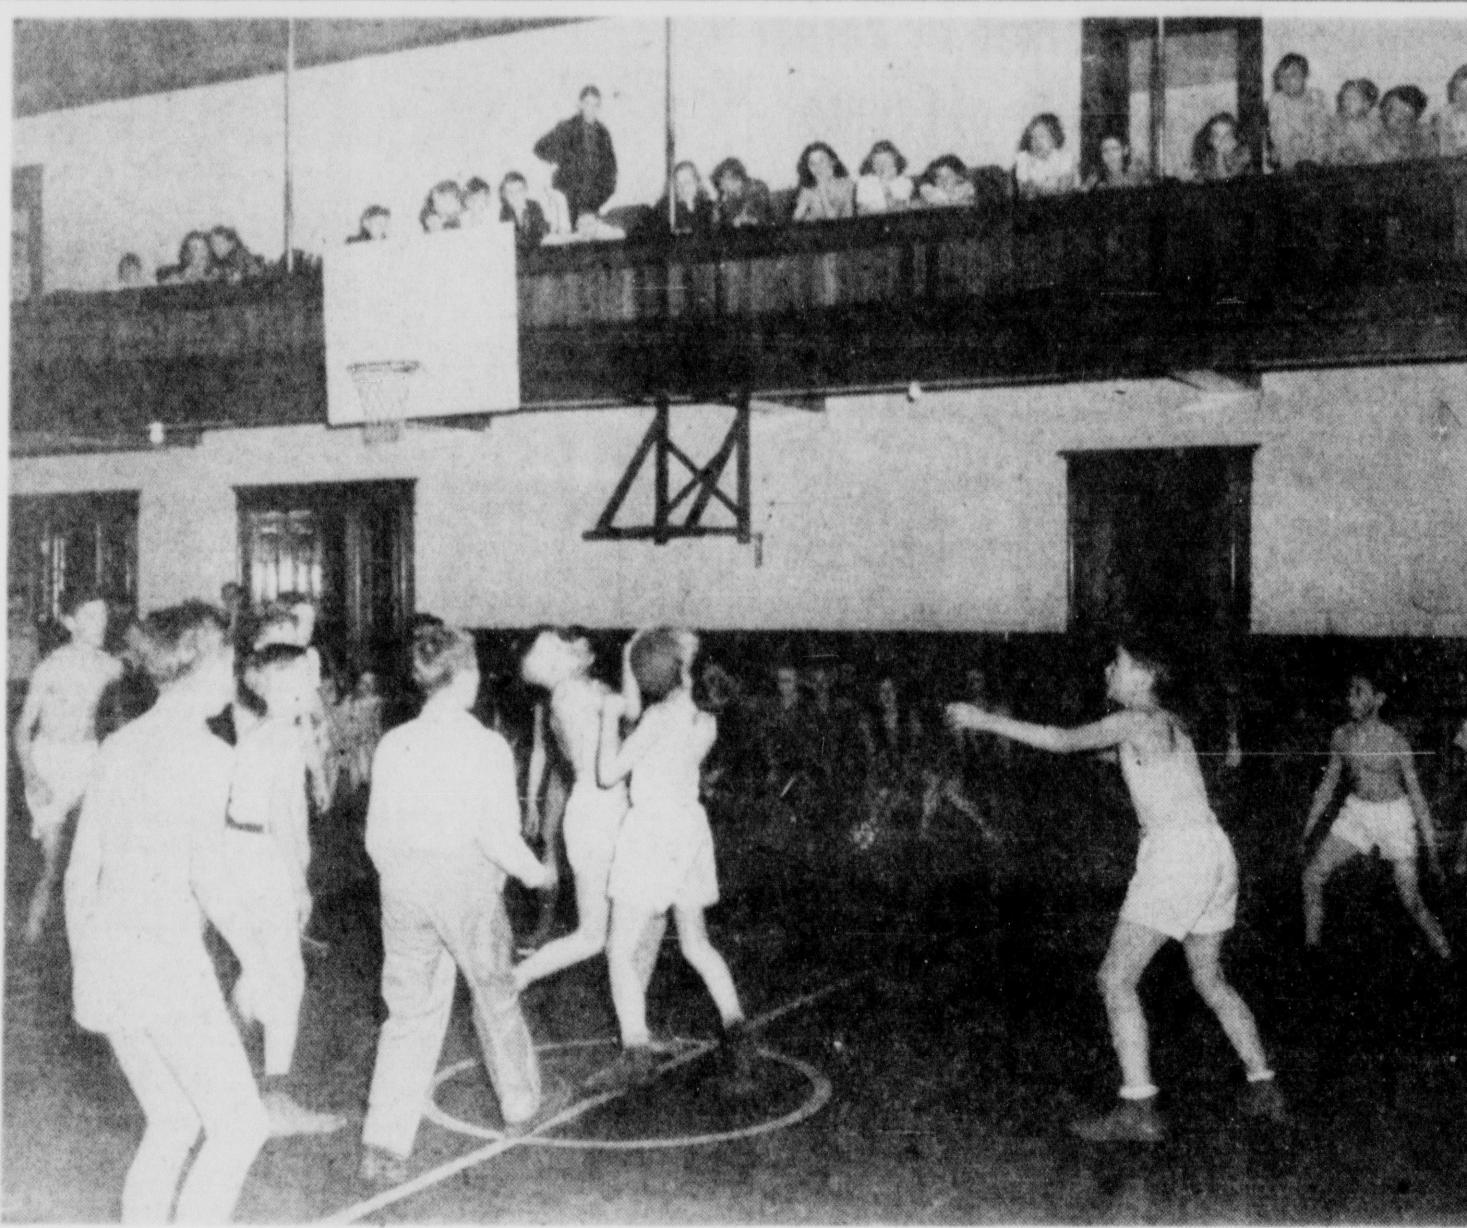

During our students' meetings and parties we got to know each other very well, and, to be frank, I liked her. Maybe she liked me, too. Anyway, the day we arrived in New York, and shortly before leaving the boat, we exchanged addresses.

Since then I started a correspondence, sending her letters, cards and souvenirs. From her, I received only one letter, which, in part, read as follows: "However, I have no objections to your writing me."

Now what can I do? Continue writing her, as she said, or stop?

B.

It seems to me this young woman is lukewarm about continuing the correspondence, to say the least. If the rest of the letter from which you quote is no more encouraging

Nestor Purchases Cement Company

Harold R. Fletcher president of the Cement Products Company announced yesterday that he has sold his controlling interest in the company to Charles L. Nestor, Westernport.

Nestor formerly of Cumberland, is president and manager under the new arrangement. His wife, Mrs. Fern M. Nestor, is treasurer and Clarence Lippel is secretary and counsel.

At one time Nestor was in the building supply and contracting business in Miami, Fla., and more recently was an auto dealer in Westernport.

The firm is installing a modern concrete block building machine at a cost of $100,000. The new equipment will increase capacity from 1,300 to 10,000 daily. The production of ready mixed concrete is being doubled and two six-cubic foot trucks for hauling concrete are being added along with other equipment.

than that sentence, I think I would forget about her and find someone more friendly nearer by. Shipboard relationships are apt to dissolve into thin air once dry ground is reached. There are numerous nice girls in your town. B. Why not make some friendships closer to home?

Shall She Divorce Husband?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been separated from my husband seventeen years. We were married nineteen years, but only lived together two years. Our separation was on account of his family interfering in our affairs. In other words, we never did go back together after we separated.

Since then, he has lost his mind and is in an institution. Could I get a divorce, and would it be the wise thing to do, because I am interested in someone else?

MRS. A. L.

In all states, continuing insanity is a cause for either divorce or a legal separation. If you are quite certain that there is no chance of your husband recovering, and you wish to marry someone else, you should consult a lawyer to see if your state is one which recognizes insanity as a cause for divorce. If it permits only legal separation, however, you obviously could not remarry.

LaSalle Wallops Piedmont Lions, 33 to 19

Explorers Coast to Win After Getting Big Lead

Lions Make First Goal with Touchdown Club Score at 16-1; Steiner, Mattingly Pour In 29 Points

Hamilton Will Get Award for His Contribution to Football

CAPT. TOM HAMILTON

Rolling up a 16 to 1 lead before the visitors connected for their initial field goal in the second quarter, LaSalle high school Explorers coasted to victory over Piedmont high school's Lions last night after SS Peter and Paul gym by the decisive score of 33 to 19.

The Mineral countians who suffered their only loss of the season to Fort Hill here earlier in the season but had knocked off both Fort Hill and Keyes in recent weeks to boost their record to eight wins against a single setback lost last night's ball game in the first half in which they scored only two goals from the field and two points from the foul line to trail by the score of 19-6 at the intermission.

LaSalle struck fast by amassing a 10 lead in the first period in which Ward's foul goal was the Lions' lone point in eight minutes.

The Explorers increased their advantage to fifteen points at 16-1 in the second period when Wolford's shot from the sideline gave the invaders their first field goal after eleven and one half minutes of play had elapsed. Louie Tucci's fielder and free throw concluded Piedmont scoring for the first half.

While the Lions were failing to rear, Jack Steiner and Bob Mattingly twisted their tails by hammering the hoop for eight field goals and one foul between them while Snyder connected for a fielder for the nineteen markers in the first half.

Piedmont showed better form in the third quarter, although outpointed 7 to 4, and finally found itself in the last heat when it marked up nine points to LaSalle's seven.

Snyder's corner shot opened the LaSalle scoring shortly after the game got under way and Steiner made it 4-0 with a neat lay-up shot. After Ward scored from the foul line, Mattingly went on a spree and banged in three fielders in rapid succession as the score mounted to 10-1.

Two goals by Mattingly and one by Steiner sent the count soaring to 16-1 in the second heat when Wolford beamed in Piedmont's initial fielder.

Snyder Is Injured

Shortly before the halftime whistle, Snyder, LaSalle's starting forward, was forced to leave the game on account of suffering a twisted ankle. The half time score was 10-6 while at the end of the third period the scoreboard showed 26-10, the biggest lead enjoyed by LaSalle during the game.

Steiner and Mattingly put on the scoring show for LaSalle by pouring in all but four of the Explorers' points. Jack accounted for 15 and Bob marked up 14. The other points were goals by Snyder and Tommy Carroll.

Piedmont was held to six fielders, Bayers and Blackburn getting two each. The floor work of Tucci and Bayers of Piedmont and Harry Hart of LaSalle was noteworthy.

Kenneth "Dip" Gerard, pinch-hitting for "Bobby" Cavanaugh, referred the game calling twelve personals on the visitors and ten on the Lions. LaSalle hooped only 3 of 13 shots while Piedmont connected seven times in 15 tries. The lineups:

Terps Lose 48-45

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Jan. 23 (P)—Chuck Noe, Cavalier guard, was the big gun in Virginia's thrilling 48-45 victory over the University of Maryland basketball team that he felt the team had been here tonight. Noe sank eight field goals and one free throw to take and short. The boys have not been three in a row, but the caliber of the competition was much stiffer in those three games. The boys have recovered from an epidemic of colds and should show some good basketball the rest of the season.

The team has come a long way in teamwork, but needs to improve a great deal yet on fundamentals. The team as a whole has been weak on rebound work. Lough said that the team was much improved over the first of the year.

It is true, said Lough, that we won our first two games and then lost three in a row, but the caliber of the competition was much stiffer than under the basket. Lough stated.

Maryland's Turny and Gleasner followed individual scoring honors won by garnering 12 and 11 points, respectively.

The team is young and has had a lot of fight. The game with Salem in Keyser Saturday night will be a hard one and it is felt that the Cats will be in there battling all the way. Several new players have reported for practice but will not be eligible for conference games until the second semester opens. A preliminary game has been arranged with the fast Davis Eagles, for the ineligible Saturday night. The first game will start at 7:15.

Lacy's Delicates took sole possession of first place in the Central YMCA Men's Basketball League last night by defeating the Fort Hill Alumni, 49-35, but the real thrills came in the nightcap of the twin bill when Allegany Alumni won over the "Y" Seniors in an overtime battle by the score of 32 to 28.

Fort Hill and Lacy's were deadlocked for the league leadership prior to last night's game when the team sponsored by Lacy Cifals, promoter of the City Softball League champions of 1945, and sparked by Fred Davis and "Chick" Snider tossed in twenty-three field goals to halt the Alumni.

Davis marked up 16 points while Snider contributed thirteen. Warren Squires was high point man for Fort Hill with ten points to his credit. Lacy's was on the long end of a 35-21 score at the halfway mark.

Goals by John Diamond and Lou Baker and two free throws by Ken Sherman enabled the Allegany Alumni to pull one out of the fire in an extra period after the regulation game had ended 26-26. In the overtime heat Bill Dean chucked in two shots from the charity line.

Diamond paced the scorers of the victorious team with nine points while Vernon Wharton had a like number of tallies for the losers.

Tonight the LaSalle Alumni will play the Celanese Chemists at 8:45 o'clock on the "Y" court. Lineups:

Campers Defend 24-Game Streak In Friday Tilt

Allegany Is Undefeated in WMI League since 1943 Season

When Allegany high school does battle with Fort Hill for the top berth in the W. M. I. League tomorrow night on the Fort Hill court Coach Walter L. Bowers' aggregation will be defending a victory string that had its inception at the start of the 1944 season.

Allegany was last defeated in a W. M. I. League contest in the final game of the 1943 campaign when Fort Hill turned the trick to the tune of 33-32. In 1944 the Blue and White won ten straight, duplicated the performance last year and added Barton, Central, Beall and Bruce to the list this year to run its unbroken string to twenty-four games.

The records for the current season show that the Sentinels have faced eight scholastic foes on their home floor and the only loss was a 26-25 setback at the hands of Davis, Piedmont, Paw Paw, Martinsburg, Central, Ridgeley, Keyser and Bartow have fallen before the Hilltoppers on the latter's court and Allegany should find its long winning streak seriously threatened in tomorrow night's encounter.

The game will mark the forty-first meeting of the local schools in a series that dates back to 1927—before the boys of the present teams were born. In the forty games played to date, Allegany has coppered twenty-nine and Penn Avenue—Fort Hill, eleven. The longest winning streak was eight games credited to Allegany from 1930 to 1934.

Professor Quiz Returns to Air Network Tonight

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (AP)—Prof. Quiz (remember him) goes back on the networks Thursday night. It will be via ABC at 7:30.

The professor, who is Craig Earl, has been away from the network kilocycles something like four and a half years, his last series having been on CBS where he did most of his broadcasting. In fact he started there to become one of the pioneers in question and answer broadcasting. In this series he plans to use fifteen contestants.

Two weeks ago Frank Sinatra was listed for the Dinah Shore show of NBC at 8:30. He didn't make it, but the schedule as now devised says he will be there as a guest this time. He and Dinah are to have a duet. Despite what the advance listing said, the Kostelanetz concert of ABC at 9 will have Ginny Simms rather than Gladys Swarthout.

America's Town Meeting, ABC at 8:30, goes into a prevailing question, phrased in this manner: "Can We Find a Substitute for Strikes?" Among the speakers will be Sen. Owen Brewster of Maine, and Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon.

The new MBS four-week drama series, "One Night Stand," has listed "Alias Romeo" for the network at 8. This is a change over a previously announced play.

Theme of the story of Musicon NBC at 11:30 will be the "Symphonic Poem," as Dr. Frank Black does the direction of the orchestra and Samuel Chotzoff comes forward with any available narration.

The "Report of Management" will be presented by J. E. Givens, Balti-

more, an official of Southern States

Cooperative, and Paul P. Cornett,

Harrisonburg, Va., district manager.

Two weeks ago Frank Sinatra was listed for the Dinah Shore show of NBC at 8:30. He didn't make it, but the schedule as now devised says he will be there as a guest this time. He and Dinah are to have a duet. Despite what the advance listing said, the Kostelancik concert of ABC at 9 will have Ginny

Simms rather than Gladys Swarthout.

America's Town Meeting ABC at 8:30, goes into a prevailing question, phrased in this manner: "Can We Find a Substitute for Strikes?"

Among the speakers will be Sen.

Owen Brewster of Maine, and Sen.

Wayne Morse of Oregon.

The new MBS four-week drama series "One Night Stand," has listed

"Alas Romeo" for the network at

8. This is a change over a previously announced play.

Theme of the story of Music on

NBC at 11:30 will be the "Symphonic."

The "Report of Management" will be presented by J. E. Givens, Balti-

more, an official of Southern States

Michael Shows Jury How He Disarmed Dornon

Dr. Thomas Bess Testifies Chief Had Previous Heart Condition

Says in His Opinion Officer Should Have Been in Bed and Not Moving about'

By JAMES B. CRAIG

Russell H. Michael, a former marine of Westerport, indicted for murder along with Alvin Fazebaker, also of Westerport, in the death of Police Chief Charles E. Dornon, Piedmont, yesterday showed the jury in the Mineral county court room at Keyser, W. Va., how he disarmed Dornon by using unarmed combat tactics.

Michael gave his demonstration after Dr. Thomas E. Bess, of Potomac Valley hospital, Keyser, had testified that the police officer had a previous heart condition and "should have been home in bed" the night of his death.

In the course of his testimony on how he disarmed Dornon of his revolver "without injuring him," Defense Counsel Edward J. Ryan said "get out of that chair and come over here in front of the jury and show them how you did it."

Explains Action

Michael stepped out of the chair and placing Ryan in the position Dornon had been in the night of the action, the ex-marine swiftly grabbed what he indicated had been Dornon's gun hand, pulled Ryan forward, locking the attorney's arm over his knee, and easily removed an assimilated gun out of the helpless lawyer's hand. At the same time Michael kept up running explanation of the action that reminded former soldiers in the crowd of a page out of the War department manual on unarmed combat.

"When you had him in this position, did he let you have the gun?" Ryan asked.

"Yes, he did," Michael replied soberly, as jurors sank back in their chairs.

Dr. Bess, who performed the first autopsy on Dornon's body, the day after his death at the request of the state, was not called by the prosecution but was summoned by the defense.

The surgeon took the stand yesterday afternoon and after Ryan had laid a careful foundation regarding his qualifications, Dr. Bess told the jury that his examination of the heart showed a "marked indication of thrombosis, usually due to infection in the past." Dr. Bess brushed aside head injuries allegedly suffered by Dornon as "brush burns." The "burns" were

Exchange Club Is Asked To Support UNRRA Program

Terminating the plight of Europe's displaced persons "terrible," Capt. Alton C. Ekstrom, United States Army, last evening urged members of the Cumberland Exchange Club to support UNRRA.

The officer, a native of Montana and a veteran of Pacific and European campaigns, reported that UNRRA was unable to cope with the situation because of insufficient backing.

The plight of the DP's he said, is often complicated by the fact that many of the 15,000,000 people representing over seventeen nationalities, now have no homes to which to return.

Return to Camps

Many of those who have been shipped to their homes, he added, returned to camps established for them since they were bewildered and were unable to become established in their former homes.

Capt. Ekstrom served with the American army of occupation in the Bavarian Alps and became familiar with the problems facing the relief agency in that area.

The American soldiers, he added, have been doing all they could to alleviate the situation of the unfortunate. As long as GI Joe has food he will feed starving people, even if he has to do without food himself, the speaker declared.

Capt. Ekstrom is spending a month's vacation with his friend, Daniel Brown, a member of the club.

Described Bavarian Area

The speaker also gave an outline of the origin of the Oberammergau passion play and conducted the members on a sightseeing trip of the Bavarian region.

J. L. Pierce, Jr., vice president of the club, presided at last evening's meeting.

Pierce announced that beginning

February 4, the club will hold regular meetings on Mondays at 8 o'clock in Central YMCA.

Prices of Electrical Equipment Should Be Checked, OPA Says

Persons buying used electric or gas stoves, or other electrical equipment such as refrigerators, vacuum cleaners and washing machines, should check the price charged for each article with the local price control board, 111 Union street, local OPA officials said yesterday.

Purchasers of such articles were also warned to secure an invoice when buying the articles either from dealers or individuals.

The OPA said that several reports of overcharges on stoves and electrical equipment have been received by the price control board.

Reunited Young Couple Spending Time at Trial

By MARJORIE CRAIG

KEYSER, W. Va., Jan. 23—Piedmont's handsome John Niland, ex-sailor, and his very pretty wife, Mary Lantz Niland, witnesses for the state, no doubt could have picked a more romantic place and situation than a courthouse and murder trial for this, their first month together as Mr. and Mrs.

The young couple (both are 22) have been married fourteen months today. Separated shortly after their wedding, they were not reunited until he returned to this country for discharge Christmas. Summoned to court to testify, they were in the Rendezvous during the recent clash, the two must stay closeby, subject to call and re-call.

Just before court opened yesterday morning, most popular topic of discussion was not the case, oddly enough, but the weather. Like Cumberland, Keyser air had a bite to it early in the morning with the Potomac river steaming frostily. Nevertheless, conflicting opinions were given regarding the mercury's low mark. The coldest weather must have been at Prosecutor Rankin's house. He claimed he thought it was "about twenty-five below." Of course, it might have been that Mr. Rankin's blood was thin from the evening's exposure going to the Southernaire's concert which he attended in Cumberland.

Michael gave his demonstration after Dr. Thomas E. Bess, of Potomac Valley hospital, Keyser, had testified that the police officer had a previous heart condition and "should have been home in bed" the night of his death.

In the course of his testimony on how he disarmed Dornon of his revolver "without injuring him," Defense Counsel Edward J. Ryan said "get out of that chair and come over here in front of the jury and show them how you did it."

Explains Action

Michael stepped out of the chair and placing Ryan in the position Dornon had been in the night of the action, the ex-marine swiftly grabbed what he indicated had been Dornon's gun hand, pulled Ryan forward, locking the attorney's arm over his knee, and easily removed an assimilated gun out of the helpless lawyer's hand. At the same time Michael kept up running explanation of the action that reminded former soldiers in the crowd of a page out of the War department manual on unarmed combat.

"When you had him in this position, did he let you have the gun?" Ryan asked.

"Yes, he did," Michael replied soberly, as jurors sank back in their chairs.

Dr. Bess, who performed the first autopsy on Dornon's body, the day after his death at the request of the state, was not called by the prosecution but was summoned by the defense.

The surgeon took the stand yesterday afternoon and after Ryan had laid a careful foundation regarding his qualifications, Dr. Bess told the jury that his examination of the heart showed a "marked indication of thrombosis, usually due to infection in the past." Dr. Bess brushed aside head injuries allegedly suffered by Dornon as "brush burns." The "burns" were

Youth Is Injured Skiing; Another Hurt Sled Riding

A 15-year-old boy suffered a fractured collarbone in a skiing accident, a 10-year-old Bowman's Addition boy had his ankle broken in a sledding accident, and four other persons were treated in local hospitals yesterday following accidents.

Richard Schriener, 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Mark A. Schriener, 514 Broadway circle, was treated in Memorial hospital yesterday at 4:45 p. m. for a fractured collarbone. The youth said he was injured when he upset while skiing every morning.

Restaurants and lunch counters in Keyser resemble those in Cumberland throughout the noon hour. They are practically inaccessible, and the line forms to the right. Savory smells are abundant though and serve as hook and bait.

Spectators had a chuckle when Attorney Shores asked Defendant Michael to "describe a shot glass." Michael obligingly complied with this request telling the jury "It's a glass you can only get your thumb in." Neat, what?

Was Sled Riding

Donald McCullough, 10, Route 3, Bowman's Addition, was treated Allegany hospital yesterday at 5 p. m. for a fracture of the left ankle. The boy said he was sled riding and that the sled crashed against the back end of a car. He was able to return to his home after a cast was applied.

David Baker, 6-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. David Baker, Ridgeley, was treated in Allegany hospital yesterday at 6:30 p. m. for a fractured left arm. The boy said he was riding a tricycle and fell down a pair of cellar steps.

Child Is Burned

Four-year-old Mary Bramble, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur S. Bramble, Route 2, was painfully burned about the abdomen and legs yesterday morning when a container full of hot coffee was spilled on her at Constitution park.

Dr. Bess's testimony yesterday afternoon kept onlookers sitting at the edge of their chairs. Dr. Bess had voiced his professional opinion that Chief Dornon "should have been home in bed instead of outside." Elwood Dornon was recalling how his father used to sit in his easy chair and feign sleep while playing with the youngsters. Then, Elwood recalls his father would suddenly make a great leap at the youngster nearest, and expell a hoarse roar. Chief Dornon's son wasn't too impressed with Dr. Bess's opinion, evidently. No man with heart trouble could leap like that, Elwood seemed to think.

Quite aside from the present case, there doesn't appear to be much doubt that a few of the returned veterans, a small minority, in this vicinity, have a wrong slant on this important business of law enforcement. For example, Chief Burza Hanlon, of Westerport, remarked yesterday that he'd pulled a gun on two ex-servicemen himself Tuesday night when one warned the chief to remember that the returned men know a lot about weapons and dirty fighting methods now and to "remember" what happened to Chief Dornon. Somebody ought to tell these boys the war is over.

The much mentioned parked car which stood in front of the Rendezvous the night of January 9 is no orphan. This was undramatically revealed in the testimony of Joe Courto, who runs a poolroom in

D. Lindley Sloan Named on State Committee on Court Procedures

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 23. (P)—of practice and procedure, of which the Judge Ogle Marbury of the Maryland Court of Appeals announced today the appointment of statewide standing committee on rules to deal with court practices and procedures.

The committee, consisting of fifteen members named by the high court, will assist the court in regulating and revising its practice and procedure as well as those of other courts.

The new group will have a court chosen reporter to assist it and work up the details of the recommendations, Chief Judge Marbury said.

He added that Governor O'Connor had agreed to "provide the necessary salary of such a reporter and the necessary cost of printing the committee's report."

During the first year the committee will have a number of matters to deal with which were left over from the committee on rules and procedure, of which the Judge Samuel K. Dennis was the chairman.

The chief judge further said, "in succeeding years the committee may not have so much to do, but our idea is that it should make a yearly report to us on any matters it may think essential or which may be brought to its attention."

The new committee is composed of: Judge Levin C. Bailey, Salisbury, chairman; Chief Judge W. Conwell Smith, of the Baltimore Supreme Bench; Judges Emory H. Niles and Joseph Sherbow, both of Baltimore; Charles C. Marbury, Upper Marlboro; J. Owen Knots, Denton; J. Howard Murray, Towson; William J. McWilliams, Annapolis; former Judge of the Court of Appeals D. Lindley Sloan, Cumberland; Attorneys F. W. C. Webb, Paul M. Higinbotham, H. Vernon Enye and Ell Frank, Jr., all of Baltimore, and Parsons Newman, Frederick.

Mrs. Edith Bowman, RFD 2, city, has been named chairman of the Red Cross sewing group formed by the Twiggton Homemakers, according to Mrs. Jim McQuown, production chairman for the Allegany county chapter of the American Red Cross.

Mrs. Bowman will head the group, which plans to hold meetings the second Saturday of each month.

Women interested in joining the group are asked to contact Mrs. Bowman.

Shortage May Be Eased

Four large wholesale distributors of butter in the Cumberland area reported yesterday that at present they are getting only ten to twelve per cent of their normal supply of butter, and predicted that the supply would not be increased until April.

At that time, however, an increase of thirty per cent in supplies of butter may occur because more milk and cream should be available, it was stated.

The city water department reported numerous requests for assistance with frozen water lines and meters. Water Commissioner William J. Edwards said the whole force was engaged in opening pipes.

Ice left from Sunday's storm made highways hazardous in some sections, but state police said last night that the use of chains was not necessary.

Attempted Assault of 9-Year-Old Girl Is Reported in Keyser, W. Va.

Officers Are Searching for Man Who, They Say, Picked Her Up as She Was Going to School and Drove Out into Country

KEYSER, Jan. 23.—A dark-haired, dark-eyed 9-year-old girl in a white snowsuit, and with her books under her arm, was trudging on her way to school yesterday when a stranger whom she mistook for a neighbor picked her up in his car, took her two miles outside of town, and assaulted or attempted to assault her, officers said.

Neighbors who live on her street are accustomed to seeing a small girl walking to school in the morning and were also accustomed to seeing various neighbors driving into town pull up at the curb and call out "come on, get in, I'll drive you the rest of the way."

The child was late for school yesterday morning. West Virginia officers revealed. She walked down the street at two minutes before 9 o'clock, hurrying along as fast as possible.

Assault Attempt Made

That was why she was glad when a car slid up to the curb and a hand beckoned her to get in. She couldn't see the figure behind the hand due to the frosted windows of the car but she presumed it was a neighbor.

However, she was not alarmed when she got in the car and discovered that the driver was a man around 45 whom she had never seen before. The little girl, who had known nothing but friendly acts all her life, did not suspect a man she regarded as her benefactor.

However, when the driver said "we'll have time to take a little ride before you go to school" she assured him that she mustn't be late and asked him to please let her out at Keyser elementary school. The man drove on without comment, taking her out on the Piedmont road, one-half mile outside of the town limits, police reported.

There, the man parked, pulled the child over on his lap and either actually assaulted her or attempted to assault her, police were not clear last night as to which happened although they stated that an examination showed that at least an attempt was made.

With the child frightened and crying, the driver turned the car around and coolly drove back to town, letting the girl out from the machine one block from her school.

The little girl was not crying when she walked into school quietly, unusually late for a pupil who had always been a model for promptness.

An alert teacher noted, however, that she had been crying and taking the child to one side questioned her. The child then burst out with the entire terrible story and the teacher, aghast, informed the principal.

Police Are Notified

The principal immediately called H. L. Geisel, superintendent of schools in Mineral county, who hurried to the Keyser Elementary school and saw to it that officers were called in and acquainted with the facts.

Police were not saying much last night regarding the case, but state police hinted that Keyser residents could expect prompt action.

"This is the first case of this sort we have had in the schools since I can remember," Idleman said. "I can't quite believe that it actually happened somehow."

Trooper L. E. Proudfit, West Virginia State Police, said that an investigation was being made with all possible angles being exploited and careful questioning of possible informants.

Court Disposes Of Appeals Filed By 17 Traversers

Pennsylvania Man Is Acquitted of Reckless Driving Charge

Criminal appeals filed by seventeen traversers following convictions in the lower courts have been disposed of in circuit court in the past two days. Chief Judge William A. Huster presided yesterday, with Assistant State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher prosecuting.

Harvey W. Lepley, 50, Sand Patch, Pa., was acquitted after a hearing before Judge Huster on an appeal from Magistrate A. U. Monahan. The magistrate had fined Lepley $10 and costs on a reckless driving charge, after an accident on the Mt. Savage road December 8.

Lepley said it was dark and he was blinded by the lights of three cars approaching from the opposite direction. Police said his car struck the parked automobile of Harvey Hogemeier, Clarence Lippel represented Lepley at the appeal hearing.

Michael Shows Jury How He Disarmed Dornon

Dr. Thomas Bess Testifies Chief Had Previous Heart Condition

Says in His Opinion Officer "Should Have Been in Bed and Not Moving about"

By JAMES B. CRAIG

Russell H. Michael, a former marine of Westernport, indicted for murder along with Alvin Fazebaker, also of Westernport, in the death of Police Chief Charles E. Dornon, Piedmont, yesterday showed the jury in the Mineral county court room at Keyser, W. Va., how he disarmed Dornon by using unarmed combat tactics.

Michael gave his demonstration after Dr. Thomas E. Bess, of Potomac Valley hospital, Keyser, had testified that the police officer had a previous heart condition and "should have been home in bed" the night of his death.

In the course of his testimony on how he disarmed Dornon of his revolver "without injuring him," Defense Counsel Edward J. Ryan said "get out of that chair and come over here in front of the jury and show them how you did it."

Explains Action

Michael stepped out of the chair and placing Ryan in the position Dornon had been in the night of the action, the ex-marine swiftly grabbed what he indicated had been Dornon's gun hand, pulled Ryan forward, locking the attorney's arm over his knee, and easily removed an assimilated gun out of the helpless lawyer's hand. At the same time Michael kept up a running explanation of the action that reminded former soldiers in the crowd of a page out of the War department manual on unarmed combat.

"When you had him in this position, did he let you have the gun?" Ryan asked.

"Yes, he did," Michael replied soberly, as jurors sank back in their chairs.

Dr. Bess, who performed the first autopsy on Dornon's body, the day after his death at the request of the state, was not called by the prosecution but was summoned by the defense.

The surgeon took the stand yesterday afternoon and after Ryan had laid a careful foundation regarding his qualifications, Dr. Bess told the jury that his examination of the heart showed a "marked indication of thrombosis, usually due to infection in the past." Exchange Club Is Asked To Support UNRRA Program

Terming the plight of Europe's displaced persons "terrible," Capt. Aiton C. Ekstrom, United States Army, last evening urged members of the Cumberland Exchange Club to support UNRRA.

The officer, a native of Montana and a veteran of Pacific and European campaigns, reported that UNRRA was unable to cope with the situation because of insufficient backing.

The plight of the DP's he said, is often complicated by the fact that many of the 15,000,000 people representing over seventeen nationalities, now have no homes to which to return.

Return to Camps

Many of those who have been shipped to their homes, he added, returned to camps established for them since they were bewildered and were unable to become established in their former homes.

Capt. Ekstrom served with the American army of occupation in the Bavarian Alps and became familiar with the problems facing the relief agency in that area.

The American soldiers, he added, have been doing all they could to alleviate the situation of the unfortunate. As long as GI Joe has food he will feed starving people, even if he has to do without food himself, the speaker declared.

Capt. Ekstrom is spending a month's vacation with his friend, Daniel Brown, a member of the club.

Describes Bavarian Area

The speaker also gave an outline of the origin of the Oberammergau passion play and conducted the members on a sightseeing trip of the Bavarian region.

J. L. Pierce Jr., vice president of the club, presided at last evening's meeting.

Pierce announced that beginning February 4, the club will hold regular meetings on Mondays at 6 o'clock in Central YMCA.

Prices of Electrical Equipment Should Be Checked, OPA Says

Persons buying used electric or gasoline stoves, or other electrical equipment such as refrigerators, vacuum cleaners and washing machines, should check the price charged for each article with the local price control board, 111 Union street, local OPA officials said yesterday.

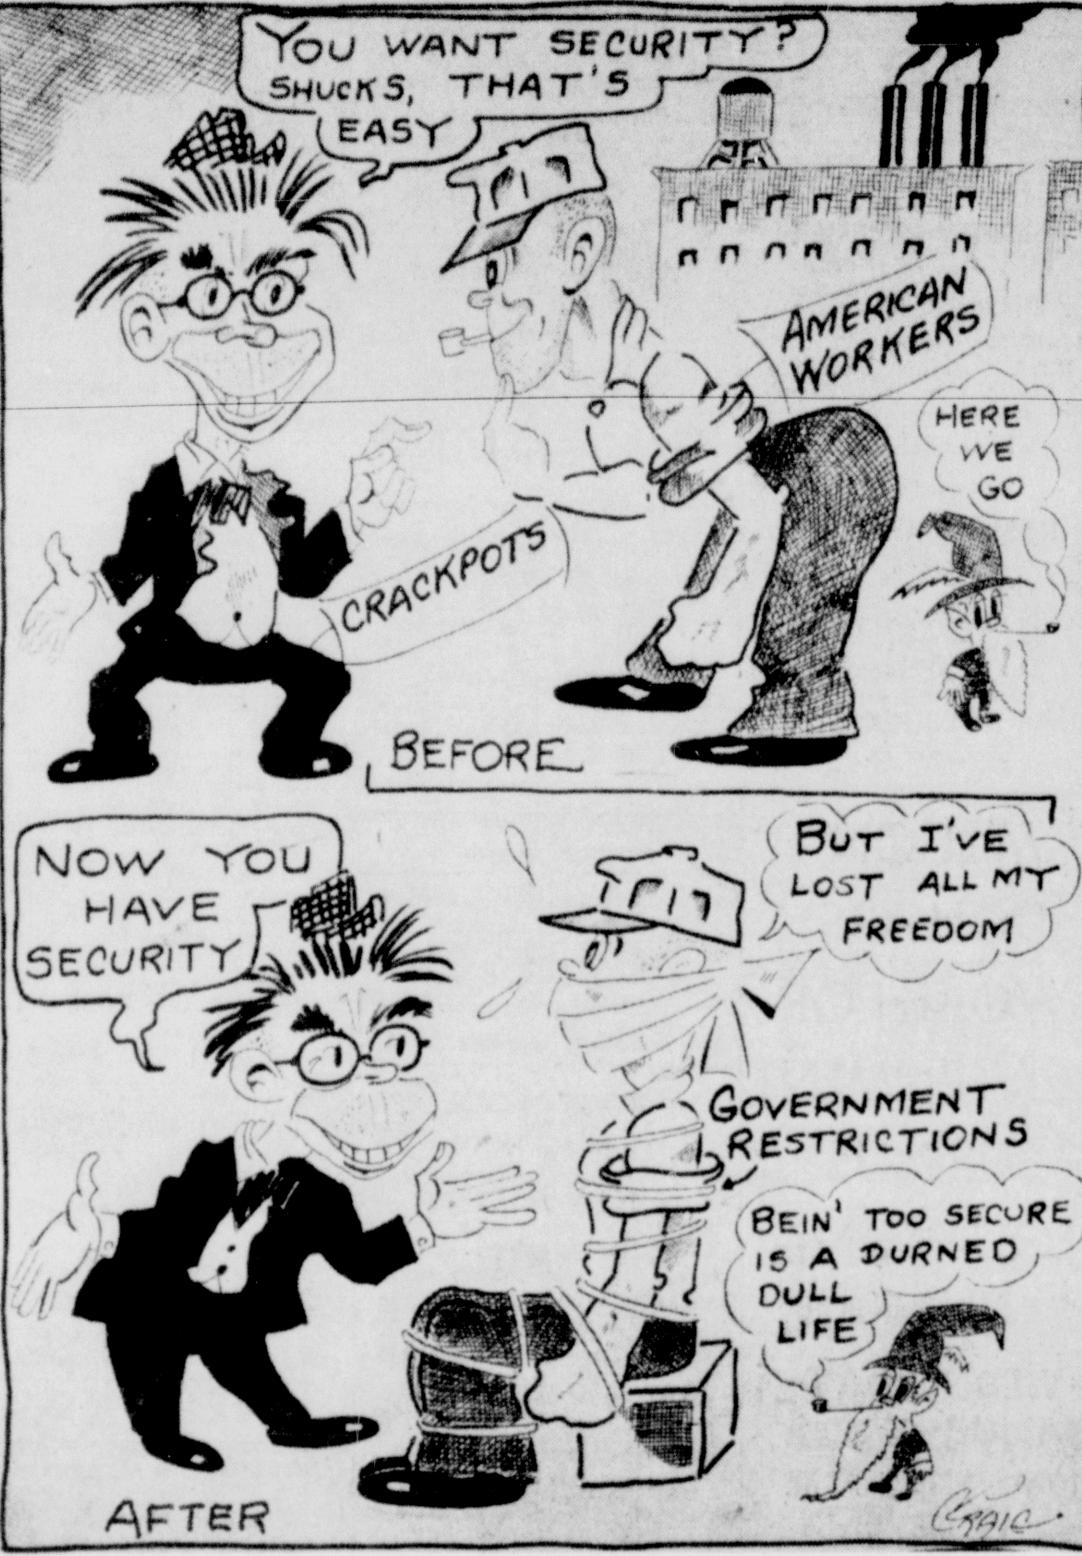

Purchasers of such articles were also warned to secure an invoice when buying the articles either from dealers or individuals.

The OPA said that several reports of overcharges on stoves and electrical equipment have been received by the price control board.

The text of Garlitz's statement is as follows:

"Our customers are constantly demanding more butter, and reluctantly our members have to reply, 'No butter today.' Yet dairy farmers in 1945 produced more milk—which also means more of the cream from which butter is made—than ever before in history. It seems the law of supply and demand is not working to relieve the butter famine."

The mercury was slowly climbing upward late last night, with a reading of 10 degrees above zero reported at 11 o'clock, 15 degrees warmer than the official low reading at 6 a. m. yesterday.

At Deal, Pa., the temperature was an even zero, as compared to 12 below Tuesday night. Thomas, W. Va., reported 13 above and clear.

Grantsville held the record for the lowest temperature reading yesterday, with twenty below. The Nave's crossroad section, a few miles from Cumberland, reported eight below.

Avilton reported 17 below;

Thomas, W. Va., Deal, Pa., and Barton, 16 below; Borden Shafft, 15 below; Frostburg, 8 below; Mt. Savage, 8 below; Altamont, Md., 2 below; Terra Alta, W. Va., Big Savage mountain and Guntersville, zero.

It is but reasonable for the public to ask, "Why title butter fatamine, when cream is so plentiful?" It is simply because governmental controls were designed to prevent the normal functioning of the law of supply and demand.

"Price control restricts butter to a wholesale ceiling of forty-six cents a pound, although butter makers must pay sixty cents a pound to buy cream, and the cream they need to produce it.

The decision to get more cattle, from such places as Chicago and Pittsburgh, was reached at the first annual meeting of the board of directors of the stockyards, held last night in the office of Ralph F. McHenry, county farm agent.

Hoffa was re-elected president, W. H. Johnson vice president and Harry J. Barton, secretary-treasurer.

Three new directors elected for three years are C. R. Armstrong and Ray Stonestreet.

Hoffa said the stockyards want to acquire a bigger volume of business and that securing stock from other cities will help that program.

Farmers who deal at the market seem to be well satisfied, Hoffa reported.

Forsythia and Jasmine Claimants Lose Bets to Meratia Pracox

"Neither of the two schools of thought in Cumberland regarding the shrub in the garden of the board of education office should feel aggrieved inasmuch as the plant is neither forsythia nor jasmine," Mark Shoemaker, extension horticulturist at the University of Maryland, announced yesterday.

In a letter to County Agent R. F. McHenry, Shoemaker wrote, "I felt pretty sure of myself but took it to Dr. Russell C. Brown, of the Botany department, who definitely determined that it was neither of the two plants mentioned above."

"It was then taken to Dr. J. B. Norton, one of the leading botanists in the country and recently returned from the University of Maryland staff," Shoemaker continued. "It was recognized by Dr. Norton as a plant rare in this area and which it resembles so closely on SUPERFICIAL EXAMINATION."

Five Youths Die As Car Crashes On Superhighway

Five youths, three and possibly all of them sailors, were killed instantly at 7:30 a. m. yesterday when their eastbound automobile crashed against the center support of a bridge on the Pennsylvania superhighway eighteen miles west of Bedford. The dead were identified as:

Thomas Joseph Kopernik, Jr., 17, Suffield, Conn., the driver, fractured skull, severe cut of the upper lip, bruised on the legs. John Lotrick, 18, Plymouth, Pa., brain concussion, internal injuries, injuries of the head and face. Jack Willoughby, about 19, Oklahoma City, Okla., fractured skull, left arm and left leg broken.

Robert L. Dubuc, 18, Nashua, N. H., fractured neck, cut lip.

Vernon Geisel, Bedford county coroner, said Kopernik, Lotrick and Dubuc were navy men. Each held the rating of seaman first class. It was not definitely determined last night whether or not the Willoughbys brothers were in the navy. Driver Went To Sleep Reliable reports obtained by the News last night indicated that the car was proceeding east at a high rate of speed and that the operator of the machine went to sleep. Geisel said Kopernik was the driver.

Before the crash occurred, the automobile apparently ran on to the westbound lane of the highway, then swerved back to the eastbound lane and hit the concrete bridge support head-on
